This Student Right-to-Know (SRTK) Graduation Rate is described as follows:

- It is based upon students who entered as full-time, first-time freshmen and graduated within 150% of the length of their program. For example, in regards to associate-seeking freshmen, this 150% measure describes students graduating from a two-year program within three years; and in regards to baccalaureate-seeking freshmen, this 150% measure describes students graduating from a four-year program within six years.
- It is an average of the graduation rates of four freshman classes, with these being the most recent four classes for which the above 150% measure can be determined.

Hence, the current SRTK graduation rate for this campus of the University of Pittsburgh of 51% is based upon the following students:

Associate-seeking freshmen who had:

- entered in Fall Term 2009 and graduated by August 2012

For this particular freshman class, the six-year graduation rate per the SRTK reporting guidelines, which specifies graduation from the campus initially enrolled, is 38%. In contrast to this restrictive SRTK graduation rate calculation is the more-inclusive graduation rate calculation, with this calculation reflecting not only those students who had graduated from this campus, but additionally those students who had transferred to, and then had earned their baccalaureate from, another University of Pittsburgh campus. This more-inclusive rate for this Fall 2012 freshman class is 59%.
